President's Corner

Starting with the April wildflower tour in the Columbia Gorge, each of our Explore More trips attracts potential and current members who remain fascinated with the Lewis & Clark story. Even more exciting to me as a former educator, some lucky students are also getting a first-hand experience following the Trail in Oregon. As we first reported several years ago, David Ellingson created a new semester-long integrated science and history class at Wood-

The "Third Choice on the Ballot" – October 25 at Mosier

Follow the intrepid Roger Wendlick as we visit a site that Lewis & Clark considered "a favorable situation" for the Corps of Discovery's 1805-06 winter camp.

Although the eventual site of Fort Clatsop on Oregon side at the mouth of the Columbia won the famous "vote", come explore the alternative preferred by several Corps members, including Sacagawea.

This field trip begins at 10:00 a.m. at a large house two miles east of Mosier, Oregon, on the old Highway 30 (watch for Roger's "pointy finger" sign on left).

"George Drouillard"

We will hike less than a mile through an orchard to see the "L&C site that might have been".

Bring your lunch and water and dress for the weather.

CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

EXPLORE MORE!

Thelma Hagenmiller and Lyn Trainer lead Explore More!, a series of chapter trips which include a Lewis & Clark connection but also help members learn about other historical and cultural events that happened since that time.

In June we toured Lewis & Clark's "Wapato Island" with the helpful guidance of Mark Nebeker (Manager of the Sauvie Island Wildlife Area). We visited the famed "sunken village" and saw extensive wildlife and flora.

R.J. (Bob) Brown describes L&C interpretation of Sauvie's Island and shows the north shore of the Columbia.

In July we joined the S.W. Washington Canoe Club, paddling seven miles through two sloughs and on the Columbia in L&C's wake.

In August we visited the Ridgefield National Wildlife Reserve and toured the new Plank House and the original Cathlapotle village site where the Corps visited.

Volunteer Kate Mueller-Wille explains the history of the longhouse at Cathlapotle and the people who built the village of 14 such longhouses, some 200 feet long, at the confluence of the Lake and Columbia Rivers.

burn High School which has a large Hispanic and Russian population. He takes the students on two camping trips in the Gorge to gather plant specimens where the Corps first encountered them and out to Fort Clatsop. I once visited his classroom and was amazed to see how he used Lewis & Clark's examples to teach modern science concepts. He will be teaching this annual course again starting in January. If you want to arrange a visit, let me know.

Watch the Chapter website and your mail for a unique opportunity to meet Stephenie Ambrose Tubbs, daughter of Undaunted Courage author Stephen Ambrose and an author in her own right. Hosted by Mike Carrick and his wife Beverly near Salem, the event (planned for the afternoon of Nov. 22) will offer a close-up look at Mike's extensive weaponry collection, including his latest acquisition: an air gun similar to Lewis's. Mike will also let participants fire the rifle and examine other artifacts of the period.

Fort Clatsop under
(re-re) construction in June 2006

Our host will be Dave Szymanski, the superintendent of the Lewis & Clark National Historic Park, which comprises Fort Clatsop and 11 other sites in Oregon and Washington.

Cultural Resource Officer Deborah Wood, who recently compiled a handy resource on Coastal tribes, will also speak.

Dick Basch, the NPS staff liaison to Trail tribes and member of the Clatsop-Nehalem Tribe, will welcome us to his homeland and deliver the opening blessing.

Come earlier that day to visit other Lewis & Clark sites in the area and the new fort replica which is a must-see in the gathering darkness of December.

The cost of the dinner is $5 per person to cover a Honey-Baked Ham. The chapter board will provide hot side dishes. Members are invited to bring appetizers, salads, or desserts. Bring your own table service and beverages. Coffee and tea will be provided.
